

PAPER PRESENTATION

by Elaine Anderson
University of Maryland

Each student will present, not read, the information from his/her paper to the class. You should be creative, yet informative with your presentation. This is each student's opportunity to teach the class about something you know. The presentation provides a formal opportunity for the students to research a subject of particular interest to them, and to organize that material into an informative and effective presentation. It will also provide students with the experience of presenting material before an interested audience. Approximately 30 minutes will be given to each student for the presentation. In additions, there may be some time for questions and comments depending upon the number of presentations. The day of your presentation, the class will complete a short evaluation form and provide written comments for the presenter. These forms will be returned to the presenter. On the basis of these evaluations the presenter will arrive at a fair grade for his/her effort which will be submitted to the instructor, along with the evaluations and a written justification at the next class. The instructor will determine the fairness of the evaluations that students provide each other.
